Course Description:

The main aim of the course is to deepen the students' knowledge in the Enlightenment and Anti-Enlightenment Traditions.

The authors the students encounter represent the liberal tradition, among others Jeremy Bentham, John Stuart Mill, John Rawls and Robert Nozick. The Conservative tradition will be discussed based on Edmund Burke, Alasdair Macintyre-, and Roger Scruton-texts and most importantly their present-day implications.

The course is only available in combination with MAD 1316.
