Course Description:

The course builds on The Introduction to Political Ideologies but may be taken without that. It aims at elaborating on the complex ideology of nationalism (its birth, the competing definitions and future of nations), as well as more current issues (migration, the future of EU and new nationalism, etc.) The seminar is designed in a way that an introduction - including student-presentation(s) - is followed by a debate on readings and issues covered by them, focusing on pros and cons of certain topics and students will be required to take sides and argue in defense of their position.
