

Title and Code of Course: ERPB-BAN 2280: International Relations 2: The Global Engagement of English-Speaking Countries

Instructors' Names: Andrew Smith

Instructor's Email Address: Andrew.Smith@unh.edu

Credit Point Value: 6	Number of Lessons per Week: 2	Type of Course: Seminar <input type="checkbox"/> Lecture <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Method of Evaluation: Oral Examination <input type="checkbox"/> In-Class Presentation <input type="checkbox"/> Other <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>
--------------------------	----------------------------------	--	--

Course Description:

The aim of the course is to present the global and local challenges of the English-speaking world that directly and indirectly influence the development of foreign relations. The course will examine the issue of global engagement from a security and geopolitical perspective, with a particular focus on global competitors and key regions, all from a US perspective.

Bibliography:

- Acharya, Amitav, and Buzan, Barry. The Making of Global International Relations: Origins and Evolution of IR at Its Centenary. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2019.
- Dalio, Ray. Principles for Dealing with the Changing World Order. New York: Simon & Schuster, 2021.
- Woodley, Daniel. Globalization and Capitalist Geopolitics Sovereignty and State Power in a Multipolar World. London: Routledge, 2017.
- Kumar, Yogendra. Geopolitics in the Era of Globalisation: Mapping an Alternative Global Future. London: Routledge India, 2020