RECTOR'S WELCOME

In 1989 the change of regime allowed Hungarian churches, including the Reformed Church in Hungary, to be engaged in education, in accordance with their traditional roles. Once we are fully aware of how our past can nourish our present and our future, we will remain faithful to our traditions and ideals. “The branch cannot bear fruit of itself, unless it abides in the vine”

(John 15:4). This is why I believe in the alliance of past, present and future generations. Although Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church was founded only after the political changes, our roots go back centuries, and we have the spiritual legacy of our ancestors.

The university is named after Gáspár Károli, the translator of the first Hungarian language Bible, so the name of our university contains a reference to the Holy Scriptures. The Bible represents the Divine Word and teaches us the discernment to distinguish right from wrong. Universities teach the human word and various scientific disciplines. Thus, as a religious university, we have a double mission. We need to consider the values reflected in the name of our university, and we are committed to serving those who seek scientific knowledge and expect the institution to help them build their career. Our university must provide values and knowledge for all. We should have a university where the depths of scientific knowledge are explored and made accessible to our students. At the same time, we will only be able to meet the challenges ahead if we can provide young people with a compass as they seek to find themselves in today's globalised, digitalised and rapidly changing world. We need the fixed stars of ideals.

One of the great new challenges is to find a harmonious balance between the preservation of our national identity and the embracement of universal values. We need to remember who we are and where we come from while being open to the world. Accordingly, our young people should be given every opportunity to enrich their knowledge also through university exchange programme participation in and outside Europe. In addition to providing excellent academic training in a variety of fields, Károli Gáspár University has the social responsibility to educate independent intellectuals with a call, a vision and a sense of duty, who are capable of firmly grounded professional thinking and exercise criticism, but above all self-criticism.

Károli Gáspár University represents an Alma Mater where, abiding in the vine, the branch bears the fruit.

Prof. Dr. László Trócsányi

THE LEGACY OF GÁSPÁR KÁROLI

Gáspár Károli (cc. 1530, Nagykároly [Carei, Romania] – 1591, Gönc)

According to Dávid Czvittinger, the first Hungarian literary historian, Gáspár Károli, a pastor of the Reformed Church, Bible translator and church organiser, was “the most outstanding Hungarian philosopher, linguist and theologian of his time; and among his followers, the most brilliant preacher of the Word of God”.

In 1586, he led a team that began translating the Bible into Hungarian, for the most part following the Latin editions of Geneva and Heidelberg. In the autumn of 1588, Bálint Mantskovit, a Polish printer settled in Vizsoly, printed the translation and the attached commentaries, which took a year and a half.

The first complete Hungarian-language Bible named the Vizsoly Bible after the place where it was printed, was published in 1590, becoming the basis for later Protestant editions of the Bible. Although it never became an official translation, its popularity spread regardless of denomination, and had a great impact on the development of the Hungarian literary language.

FACTS AND FIGURES - WHY KÁROLI?

HUNGARY

MEETING OF ERAS, MERGING OF STYLES: KÁROLYI-CSEKONICS PALACE

Based on Ferdinand Fellner and Herman Helmer's design from Vienna, the Palace was built between 1881 and 1885 for Margit Csekonics and her husband István Károlyi. The Károlyi-Csekonics Palace was badly damaged during WWII, and it was not restored properly for a long time. At the end of 2015, the Hungarian government decided to give the Károlyi-Csekonics Palace, that is, the block of buildings between 17 Múzeum utca and 6 Reviczky utca in the 8th district, to the Reformed Church of Hungary. Renovation work on the palace complex, which was listed as a historic monument in 2004, began at the end of 2017 and the building was officially inaugurated on September 1, 2020.

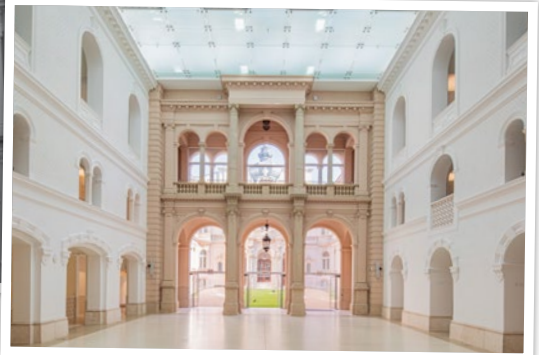

The palace complex has been rebuilt to accommodate up to 900 students in its lecture and seminar halls: it boasts a 200-seat conference hall, a 120-seat lecture hall, two additional smaller lecture halls, and 25 seminar rooms. The building also houses the Institute of History and the Doctoral School of the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences, the Bod Péter Library and the offices of the Student Self-Government. The offices of the Rector's Office are located in the wing facing Múzeum utca, which also contains the impressive lobby and staircase, the ballroom, the cigar room and the dining room, suitable for hosting various events.

The unique atmosphere, the tasteful blend of eras and styles make the Károlyi-Csekonics Palace a superb event venue.

PAST AND PRESENT

THE THEOLOGICAL ACADEMY OF BUDAPEST CELEBRATES 170 YEARS

It is no coincidence that 1855, the founding year of the Theological Academy of Pest (known today as the Reformed Theological Academy of Budapest), is proudly displayed on the coat of arms of the Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary. It is from the Academy's legacy of reformed values and spirit that the latter institution was born. After the fall of the communist regime in Hungary, the Academy was granted university status, followed by the incorporation of the Teacher Training College of Nagykőrös and an expansion through the establishment of the Faculty of Humanities, which culminated in the 1993 foundation of the Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary. Today the Faculty of Theology of the university operates as a legal successor to the Reformed Theological Academy of Budapest.

In August 1855, pastoral training previously conducted in Kecskemét was relocated to Budapest, bringing education shaped by protestant theology and evangelism to the capital for the first time. Early reformed theological courses were offered in Budapest in a building situated behind the church on Kálvin Square, where the Városcapu Shopping Centre is standing now. However, as the institution grew, a move became inevitable.

The grand building of the Theological Academy at 28 Ráday Street was initially constructed as military barracks. Over the years, it also served as a hospital and even a tobacco factory before accommodating the Academy. After the relocation of the tobacco factory to the outskirts of the city, the Dunamellék Church District of the Reformed Church in Hungary came into possession of the former factory building. Following a year-long remodelling, the building—also housing a boarding school—was ceremonially re-opened on 2 November 1912, becoming a new home for the students and professors of the Theological Academy. The general meeting of the Church District approved plans for the expansion and renovation of the building in 1978, resulting in the construction of a new wing between 1981 and 1983, which was made up of 75 student bedrooms, each with two beds, and 8 flats across three floors. Between 1983 and 1987, a full refurbishment of the ageing building took place, followed by a final full-scale renovation that commenced in 2019 and enabled the Faculty of Theology to begin the academic year of 2022/2023 in an essentially brand new building complex, which was given the name Ráday Ház (Ráday House).

The Faculty of Theology is engaged in the training of pastors, theologians and teachers of religious education. Its approach to the science of theology is deeply rooted in the Scripture and in the confessional documents of the Reformed Church, aiming to prepare students for the roles they are called to by God—whether as pastors or as educators. A unique characteristic of the Faculty is its strong emphasis on practical training for future pastors.

RÁDAY UNIVERSITY STUDENT HOSTEL

The Ráday Ház (Ráday House) opened its gates in October 2022. The building complex is home to the Faculty of Theology, a student hostel operated by the Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary, the Bishop's Office of the Dunamellék Church District of the Reformed Church in Hungary, the Ráday Collection, and the Bible Museum as well.

Students of the Faculty of Theology could first move into the newly opened Ráday University Student Hostel at the beginning of the 2022/23 academic year. The refurbished student accommodation offers well-lit interior spaces, spacious communal areas and an on-site chapel. The Pál Török Library has also found a new home in the loft and awaits readers with flexible opening hours to meet the needs of students.

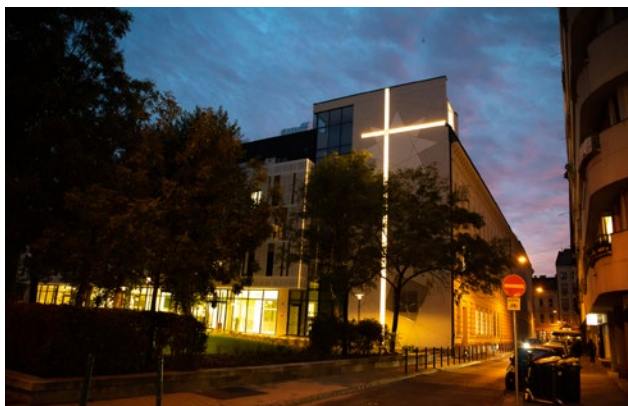

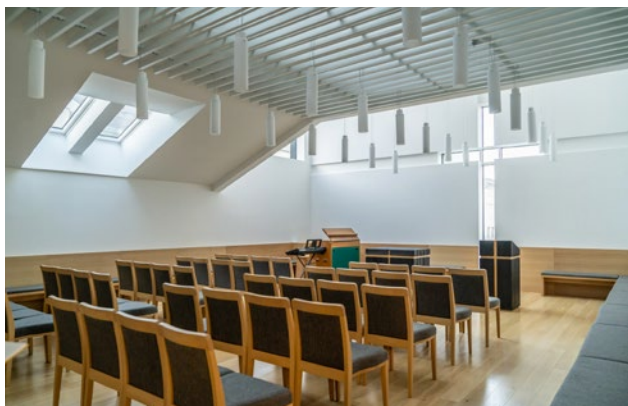

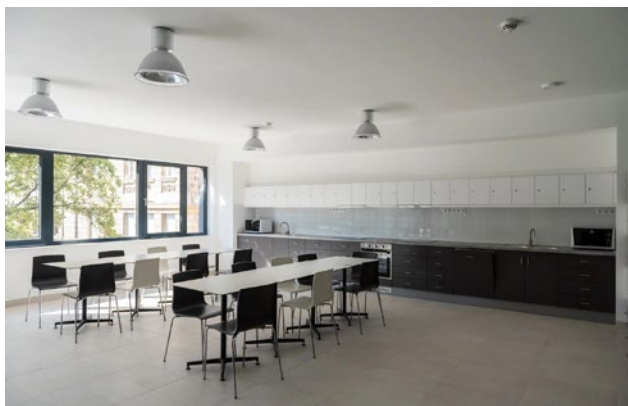

Equipped with a modern heating and air conditioning system, the building ensures both the safety and comfort of the students housed in 48 rooms across its three floors. The majority of the rooms has two beds, a bathroom and a balcony. A study room, a laundry room and a spacious kitchenette are also available on each floor. Every student living in the hostel can safely store their kitchen utensils and appliances in their own locker. The building also offers appropriate accommodation for students with disabilities and ten guest rooms with a total of twenty beds and three flats. One of the most well-liked spots among students is the rooftop terrace, which boasts views of Gellért Hill and its own communal room, ideal for student banquets and various other events.

Designed with modern standards and the needs of the community in mind, the building is now accessible from Markusovszky Square via a newly constructed entrance, where a 24/7 reception service and access control system see to the security of the residents. The open floor-plan atrium on the ground floor houses a lobby, a cafeteria and a restaurant. The inner courtyard was transformed into a peaceful relaxation area, and the car park was moved to an underground parking garage below it.

KÁROLI REFORMED BOOK AND GIFT SHOP

A long-standing goal of Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary was realised in November 2024 with the opening of the Károli Reformed Book and Gift Shop at 3 Ráday Street. Situated in an area bounded by streets named after John Calvin, Menyhért Lónyai and Pál Török, the bookshop awaits visitors on a Street named after Pál and Gedeon Ráday. One of the most significant aspects of Pál Ráday's legacy, a celebrated collector of books and the first Universal Chief Curator of the Reformed Church in Hungary, was his family library. Further expanded by his son, Gedeon Ráday, it played a crucial role in the anticipation the Hungarian Enlightenment movement. Accordingly, the Károli Reformed Book and Gift Shop serves the academic needs of the University, just as it contributes to students' broader cultural, spiritual and educational development.

Located at the corner of Ráday Street and Kálvin Square, the building became known as the Two Lions Inn in the 1770s before being acquired by the Reformed Church in the 1930s. Following its nationalisation during the communist era, the building complex was returned to the Church in the 1990s. Until June 30, 2004, it was home to the Protestant Book Shop, the first book shop of Calvin Publishing House (then known as the Media Department of the Reformed Church) at 1 Ráday Street. Due to the renovation and reconstruction of the Ráday Street head office of the Dunamellék Church District of Reformed Church in Hungary, the Bible Bookshop was also temporarily relocated here.

FACULTY OF LAW

The dynamically developing Faculty is the youngest institution in legal higher education in Hungary, at the same time, it is also a worthy heir to a long tradition of law schools. The Faculty of Law of Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary was established in 1998 as the successor of Kecskemét Reformed Church Law Academy founded in 1831. Originally established in 2003, the Doctoral School of Law and Political Sciences has been functioning in a renewed capacity since 2014. Responding to the contemporary market needs, the Faculty offers various undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate programmes in addition to the traditional one-cycle law programme. The lecturers at our faculty include - among many other renowned experts - the head of the Office of Economic Competition, a curia judge, a constitutional judge, constitutional court advisors and a deputy state secretary.

Doctoral School: Our Doctoral School of Law aims at providing problem-oriented rather than norm-oriented training to prepare students for the legal profession. We try to be flexible in the organisation of doctoral training taking into account the individual needs of our doctoral students while also aiming to maintain the high quality of training and the collegial atmosphere. We are confident that our programmes will greatly contribute to the successful career of future academics and researchers in the field.

From the academic year 2022/2023, the Doctoral School also offers English-language programme.

Talent management – the Scientific Students' Circle - non-formal and informal learning:

From the beginning, the Faculty of Law has placed great emphasis on the recognition, development and support of talented students, and the enhancement of their knowledge. The Faculty supports the talent management of students through Bocskai István College of Excellence, the Scientific Students' Circle (TDK), national and international student competitions, and tutorial training. Regular Scientific Students' Circle meetings, preparation for student competitions, lectures by renowned experts and international experts, visits to national and international institutions and conferences are all ongoing activities of talent management.

Since 2005, Bocskai István College of Excellence in Legal and Social Sciences has been a community-centered intellectual workshop for law students to encourage and support talented young people who are eager to learn. The aims of the college are to provide high-standard professional education by developing its own professional programme to nurture the talents of outstanding students, and to foster the development of professionally ambitious intellectuals who are sensitive to social problems. Students can apply for admission to the college on the basis of their academic record and professional skills.

FACULTY OF HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

The Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences (formerly the Faculty of Humanities), originally established in 1993 to train secondary school teachers, has changed significantly in recent years, and its training spectrum has been expanded: it offers a number of Bachelor's, Master's and postgraduate programmes in Hungarian and foreign languages, as well as two doctoral schools. Research is a fundamental element of the faculty, and it is a key tool for the constant renewal and innovation of the knowledge taught and teaching materials used. One of the most important aims of education is to nurture students' talents and prepare them for independent, conscientious work.

The academic success at the faculty is not only indicated by the excellent place the faculty has taken in higher education rankings of recent years, but also by the continuous increase in students' numbers.

The Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences (BTK) ranks third in terms of number of first-place applicants in the humanities field rankings on the basis of data of HVG Diploma 2025.

Moreover, our faculty ranked first in terms of the proportion of lecturers holding a doctoral degree among Hungarian faculties of humanities. The proportion of doctoral degree holders among all lecturers of the faculty is 95.5% - outstanding at national level.

There are 13 students' scholarly circles at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences. The Faculty of Humanities ties and Social Sciences considers it an important task to pay special attention to talented students, to support talent management and expand students' opportunities, and to improve the framework of talent management. The work of students' scholarly circles is a major asset for the faculty and, based on the achieved results, it is one of its most important strengths.

Benda Kálmán College of Excellence in Humanities and Social Sciences opened its doors to students in September 2017 with the aim of becoming an outstanding centre of excellence for undergraduate, graduate and postgraduate students. The College strives to equip outstanding young professionals with up-to-date knowledge for the benefit of the Hungarian nation, based on Christian - and particularly Protestant - values and attitudes, motivating students to become involved in national and international academic life and, by earning a doctoral degree, providing a supply of well-qualified new recruits for Hungarian academic institutions and establishments of higher education. In recent years, student services at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences have steadily expanded. Two such important services of the faculty are the Career Office and the Student Counselling Service.

International relations

The Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences currently has approximately 120 Erasmus+ KA 131 partners in 26 countries across Europe. In addition to these partnerships, it has participated in the KA 171 programme (International Credit Mobility) with 16 partner institutions from 11 countries, two Erasmus KA 203 projects (Translanguaging for Equal Opportunities: Speaking Romani at School; and Civic and History Teachers' Education in Europe), two EMDM projects (EUTELL, Drama.site), and one EMJM project (EMLex). It is a member of three CEEPUS networks and has more than 40 overseas partner agreements.

Currently, the following five full study programmes are offered to international students at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences in a foreign language: BA in Psychology, BA in English and American Studies, MA in English Studies, MA in German Language, Literature and Culture, EMLex. Our faculty joined the Stipendium Hungaricum programme in 2015. The Scholarship for Christian Young People and the Károli Christian Scholarship have been accepting students for full study programmes from partner countries since 2019, while the Hungarian Diaspora Scholarship has done so since 2021. In 2019, the Hungarian Accreditation Committee (MAB) accredited the European Master in Lexicography programme (EMLex - Europäischer Master für Lexikographie, European Master in Lexicography) as an international joint degree programme with English and German as the languages of instruction.

FACULTY OF THEOLOGY

The Faculty of Theology - the successor of the Budapest Reformed Theological Academy (1855) - was established in 1993 to train pastors and theologians for the benefit of organizations - both within and outside the Reformed Church. The faculty provides opportunities for students to the Old and New Testaments written in ancient sacred languages (Hebrew and Greek), to deepen their theological and ethical reflection, to enable them to gain a broader knowledge of the history of religion and that of the Church, and also to acquire pastoral practice. Our faculty is also open to those who wish to study Reformed theology.

The average number of students amounts to 150-160, which allows for a family atmosphere and individual attention in interacting with students. The faculty and its predecessor have been awarding doctoral degrees in theology since the Second World War. After being granted state accreditation, the Doctoral School of Theology was established in 1992 and for a number of years it was the only doctoral school of the University. In addition to the doctoral degrees awarded, the Doctoral and Habilitation Council has awarded doctor honoris causa titles to renowned Hungarian and international academics and renowned experts of the field.

FACULTY OF ECONOMICS, HEALTH SCIENCES AND SOCIAL STUDIES

The Faculty of Economics, Health Sciences and Social Studies was established in 2022, harmonising the economics, health and social training programmes of the University. Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary was the first of the large church universities to establish a faculty focusing on the field of management. In addition to health care, social work and social pedagogy, the new faculty runs programmes in human resources and management, commerce and marketing. Based on the developments in progress, within five years it will be present in the entire university training spectrum.

We devote primary attention to the number of the postgraduate training programmes within the framework of which we prepare the leaders of the growing number of church institutions for their executive and managerial tasks, in terms of economics. The faculty builds on the strong foundation of the centuries-old tradition of higher education provided by the Reformed Church in Hungary, in order to train social care and health experts who, equipped with well-established, diverse knowledge, can confidently address the complicated professional and human challenges of the present.

The faculty launches training programmes at two training locations (Budapest and Kecskemét) in the field of social sciences and religious studies. The training is delivered both in lecture/seminar rooms and at external internship locations in a family atmosphere, with the assistance of our committed teachers, who are well-known experts in their profession. In the field of health science training programmes, our key partner is the Bethesda Children's Hospital of the Reformed Church in Hungary, while for training programmes in church welfare work and social care it is the Hungarian Reformed Church Aid (HRCA).

It is our hope that the students graduating from the faculty will play a key role in solving the challenges triggered by the current economic, social and health processes.

FACULTY OF PEDAGOGY

The Teacher Training College, the predecessor of the faculty, was founded in 1839 by the Presbytery of the Reformed Church of Nagykőrös, and for approximately a hundred years it trained cantors, until the institution was first taken over by the state in 1948 and then closed in 1957. In 1990, the training of primary school teachers and religious education teachers was re-launched in Nagykőrös, and soon the faculty's profile was extended with new programmes. In 1993, the Nagykőrös Teacher Training College became one of the founding faculties of Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary. The Faculty of Pedagogy offers courses in teacher training, theology and humanities at four training sites (Nagykőrös, Budapest, Kecskemét and Marosvásárhely). On average, graduates in teacher training can gain employment in less than a month after completing their studies. The career retention rate among graduates is 70-80%.

DEGREE PROGRAMMES IN FOREIGN LANGUAGES (ENGLISH AND GERMAN)

BA in English and American Studies

The BA in English and American Studies equips students with practical knowledge and transferable skills they can apply immediately in academic and professional contexts. In addition to developing students' advanced English language proficiency, the programme offers a rich selection of courses in linguistics as well as in the literature, culture, and history of key English-speaking countries and regions.

BA in Psychology (in English)

The aim of the program is to prepare students for the master's degree and the practical work of a behaviour analyst. Areas of application include: the conduct of aptitude tests and standard examination procedures in all organisations involved in education, training, development, management, selection, health promotion, re-education, correction, remediation and rehabilitation activities, in which professionals use human interventions in their work, and in all psychological laboratories in the field of occupational psychology. Students can earn the bachelor qualification behavioural analyst by completing the programme.

MA in English Studies

Students with a Bachelor's degree in English Studies who wish to deepen their knowledge of English literature, culture and linguistics and at the same time, to acquire a broader range of language skills applicable to the labour market are especially encouraged to apply. The MA in English Studies programme offers three specialisations: English Literature and Culture, English Applied Linguistics, and Society and Culture of English-

Speaking Countries. Graduates are also well prepared to pursue doctoral studies.

EMLex - European Master in Lexicography (in German and English)

EMLex is a joint Master's programme that aims to provide comprehensive, university-level training in European lexicographic, computational lexicographic, corpus lexicographic and dictionary research, with the participation of lecturers from eight universities, and researchers from the IDS (Institut für Deutsche Sprache). EMLex will also enable students from different European countries to be trained together, and students, teachers and professors to work even more closely together in the future. The Erasmus Mundus scheme provides several scholarships for talented students with a good knowledge of English and German and a keen interest in lexicography and linguistics. For more details, check out:

MA in German Language, Literature and Culture (in German)

The disciplinary Master's degree aims to provide a comprehensive knowledge of German language, literature and culture and teach specialised skills related to the two specialisations with internships [German-speaking cultures, communication and economy in practice; International lexicography - with the opportunity to join the Erasmus-Mundus EMLex-programme]. The first specialisation conveys skills in culture mediation and literary translation, and knowledge about minority languages.

Doctoral studies in Law and Political Sciences (in English)

This doctoral programme is recommended for those who wish to obtain a doctoral degree in the field of law and political sciences. In addition to the compulsory subjects, candidates can choose from a wide range of electives. Over eight semesters, students will have the opportunity to acquire up-to-date knowledge, participate in conferences and become involved in teaching university courses during their studies. Doctoral students start their research in parallel with their studies, assisted by a supervisor. The first four doctoral semesters comprise the training and research phase. After the first four semesters, students take a complex examination. The complex examination measures and assesses academic and research progress. The second four semesters comprise the research and dissertation phase. In addition to research work, the main tasks of doctoral students during this period include the preparation and presentation of publications and the writing of the PhD dissertation.

For more information: <https://ajk.kre.hu/doctoral.school/>

PhD studies in Theology (in English and German)

The aim of the programme is to introduce students to the latest research methodologies, prepare them for independent scientific work, support them in attending professional conferences, and help them gain experience in higher education.

LL.M. in European and International Business Law (in English)

This master-level programme in English invites professionals who already hold a degree in law and would like to develop greater competence in various aspects of European and international, business, commercial and economic law. Courses are designed to cover a broad range of complex legal regulations of intra- and extra-European economic transactions and commercial relations. Through organized internship opportunities, participants can gain insights into the operational practice of international and European business law as well as experience in legal English as a working language.

LL.M. in Digital Economic Legal Expert (in English)

The purpose of the postgraduate specialist LL.M. programme of Digital Economic Legal Expert is to guide participants through the most current legal and regulatory issues in the digital economy, providing a systematic overview of the most important legal aspects of the digital economy.

Graduates will be equipped with the tools to deal with the legislative challenges posed by these technologies and to address the legal issues resulting from cutting-edge technology.

LL.M. in Energy and Natural Resources Law (in English)

The purpose of the postgraduate specialist LL.M. programme of LL.M. in Energy and Natural Resources Law is to provide participants with the main regulatory frameworks of energy law at international and national level as well. The training programme will give students an insight into the world of electricity, natural gas and renewable energy regulation. It will also include the acquisition of key knowledge of international systems related to energy and of energy policy, for a more efficient use of natural resources.

STUDENT LIFE AND STUDENT SERVICES

Student life in Budapest

In Budapest, you have every opportunity to make your university years the best time of your life. Budapest is literally the heart of the country, a vibrant, colourful cosmopolitan city. Students who receive high-quality education in any of our long-established disciplines can study directly in or just minutes away from the vibrant city centre of Budapest. There are dozens of libraries, more than 100 museums, exhibition halls and galleries, and nearly 100 theatres for those seeking quality entertainment. At the Academy of Music, the Palace of Arts, or the Opera House, you can listen to world-renowned artists, in addition to a variety of musical events catering to every taste. For other forms of relaxation, there are more than 500 cafés, popular nightclubs, 15 beautiful spas and numerous pools in Budapest. Students studying in Budapest can also enhance their prospects of gaining employment after their studies, by starting to build their careers during their university years through company internship programmes.

Student life at our university

Student life at our university is vibrant. The location of our campuses is attractive to our students, and offers a cultural environment that faculties can exploit in a variety of ways. Our students enjoy an active social and academic life.

Our activities include:

- book presentations, discussions, art days
- autumn and spring training week with vocational and cultural workshops

- student talent nurturing days
- conferences, symposia, professional forums
- sports events
- prayer meetings and Bible studies
- KREaktív talent scout competition
- Károli Open University

The University Student Self-Government

The University Student Self-Government (KRE HÖK, EHÖK) represents students at university level. The aim and task of KRE HÖK is to represent the interests of students in all higher education matters in all the university, regional and national bodies. The representatives of the faculty student self-governments participate in faculty-level decision-making forums, perform extensive event organisation tasks, and assist students in matters concerning higher education.

Sports

In addition to intellectual development, physical health is also important to our university, and students can attend the university's football, basketball or floorball training sessions, try their skills at water polo and ice hockey, or, at any time during the academic year, join the university's successful teams, namely, the four-time Budapest champion volleyball team, the two-time Budapest champion handball team, or the three-time national champion beach handball team.

Lovers of recreational sports can also choose from a wide range of options, such as aerobics, zumba, pilates or various types of dance sessions and martial arts, for which, there are gyms and fitness rooms available for students in several buildings of the university. Those who enjoy competitive sports can take part in the exciting inter-institutional competitions organised within the framework of the Hungarian University and College Championships, or enter their own teams for the autumn and spring sports days' home championships. The sports office offers a wide range of competitive and recreational sports activities. Our University places great emphasis on enabling our elite sports students to combine their sporting careers with their studies.

Through a scholarship founded for supporting their sporting activities, assistance is also provided to other athletes studying in our institution. The university aims to provide more diversified opportunities for its students in the future, thus contributing to our students leading a more health-conscious lifestyle.

The Sports Club of Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary was established on 1 January 2023. Károli SC offers all participants of competitive sports and leisure sports a variety of forms of exercise, high level coaching and competition opportunities. The Sport Club looks forward to welcoming all students interested in sports with 4+1 sections.

Language studies

The University provides students studying at all faculties with general and specialised language courses preparing them for their future career.

We teach ESP for Law catering for the needs of students at the Faculty of Law, Ecclesiastical Language at the Faculty of Theology, ESP for medicine and sports at the Faculty of Economics, Health Sciences and Social Studies, while students of Psychology can study ESP in Psychology.

The Department of Foreign Languages functions also as a THEOLINGUA Church Language Examination Centre, where you can take a state-accredited language examination. Preparatory courses in English, German and Italian are available to help those wishing to take the examination.

Károli students receive a discount on the fees for both the preparatory course and the language examination. The Department offers general language courses in English, French, German, Russian, Spanish, Italian, Finnish, Dutch, Chinese, Portuguese and other languages upon request from beginner to advanced level.

The Association of University Libraries

The Association of University Libraries of Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary was founded in the summer of 1999. It includes the libraries of the Faculty of Law, the Bod Péter Library of the Faculty of Humanities and Social sciences, the Török Pál Library of the Faculty of Theology, the Library of the Faculty of Pedagogy and the Institute for Central and Eastern European Mission Studies. The Kecskemét Campus

Library joined the association in July 2021. The main task of the Association of University Libraries is to continue the library traditions of the Reformed Church colleges of Sárospatak, Pápa, Debrecen, Nagyenyed and Kolozsvár, and to develop its scope of collections in such a way that it supports the training and research of other disciplines next to the education of pastors. The opening hours of our libraries are adjusted to the needs of our students, several of them working with extended opening hours.

Career and pathway guidance

The aim of the Career Office of the Faculty of Law is to enhance the value of the degrees awarded by the University by creating connections between our students and the representatives of the business and the institutional sectors, and by supporting conscious career planning in order to establish a job culture in which students can find the most appropriate jobs matching their expertise and interests. The Career Office provides assistance with the reception, administration and submission of internships.

The Career Office at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences provides students with free counselling and a complex range of services to help them plan, shape, and develop their careers. Through courses, and sessions led by experts and alumni, students gain insights into labour market trends, job search strategies, and different career paths. The Office provides students with information on various topics on its social media pages and website, ranging from study-related topics, and career-related mental health issues to presenting various career opportunities, student and internship jobs, job advertisements, volunteering, and relevant scholarships and programmes abroad.

In the new Faculty of Economics, Health Sciences and Social Studies, career consultation has an important function: it focuses on the advisory and organising work connected with the professional internship of the students of the faculty, while through its widening professional relations and ALUMNI network it also intends to contribute to helping students gain employment successfully and quickly. We aim to help our students acclimatise in their profession and provide further support with our practice-oriented training programmes involving of practising experts.

The Student Counselling Centre

With the help of the Student Counselling Centre, the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences provides information and mental health services to help students integrate into the University community and maintain a balanced lifestyle. The Student Counselling Centre provides the following services to students: peer support, psychological counselling, online mental health counselling, and career and life guidance, as well as various group activities, such as a thematic film club, self-awareness groups, and study support groups.

The Alumni Programme

The aim of the Alumni Programme of Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary is to help former students remain in contact with their fellow students after completing their studies, to support them in their professional relationships and to offer them the opportunity of lifelong learning. Our alumni newsletters provide information on new courses and programmes, scientific conferences, events, latest publications and other interesting pieces of university news. We invite our former students to participate in various university-related activities and talks with students, and organise alumni meetings. In addition to the above, we also provide useful information to help our graduates find jobs. Registered alumni members get a discount from programme fees, if they continue their studies at Károli.

The Károli University Chaplaincy - a spiritual base for Károli students

The aim of the Károli University Chaplaincy is to support students in making the university years not only a time of knowledge acquisition, but also a significant period of spiritual growth.

SOULító Peer Support

The SOULító Peer Support Group is comprised of volunteers who are psychology and sociology majors studying at the University. They understand their peers best and help them with the difficulties in their student life. They offer both one-to-one and group sessions.

Life coaching

In life coaching sessions, a highly experience psychologist invites all those who are struggling with problems or family and relationship crises, as well as those who wish to deepen their self-awareness.

kont@kt – Online Student Counselling

Taking advantage to the Internet, Kont@kt Online Student Counselling offers an opportunity for students who wish to remain anonymous to receive support regarding issues related to life management, relationships, integration, career choices, or self-awareness.

KAPSZLI

KAPSZLI, a student body within the Faculty of Psychology at Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary, has been organising lectures and conferences on various topics related to psychology for over 20 years. Its main goal is to make psychological knowledge accessible to as large an audience as possible, including both professionals and interested members of the public. Consequently, its events are open and free of charge for everyone. Its key programmes include a series of presentations titled Lelki Morzsa (Crumbs for the Soul) and KAPSZLI Pszichológiai Napok (KAPSZLI Psychology Days), Hungary's largest conference on psychology with free admission.

KÁROLI INTERDISCIPLINARY ACADEMY

The aim of Károli Interdisciplinary Academy (KIDA) is to provide high quality, interdisciplinary professional programmes beyond university education for students who are admitted to the Academy. KIDA invites applications from students who, as intellectuals with a sense of commitment, feel a sense of responsibility for Hungary and wish to participate in shaping its future, while being also open to discussing current social issues.

KIDA is inspired by the spirit of Gáspár Károli and the University. Its mission is to nurture and support talent, and it is important for KIDA to create professional relationships between students from different faculties of the University that go beyond traditional university studies. The aim of KIDA is to follow the life path of students participating in the special talent nurturing programme, and to remain at their disposal through career guidance.

The Academy became operational in the academic year 2022/2023. Applications for first-year courses are accepted at the end of the first academic year of the bachelor programme, that is, during the examination period of the second semester.

Károli Interdisciplinary Academy offers four workshops:

1. Diaspora and Minorities
2. Europe in the World
3. Family Protection - Focus on the Child (ONLY the Child)
4. Reformed Remembrance, Tradition, Identity (RETRO)

The unique talent nurturing programme offers a scholarship for participants who will acquire unique skills and expertise. Our workshops provide useful and marketable knowledge, the opportunity to meet renowned national experts and international speakers, and a first-class network of contacts. Upon completing the programme, participants will receive a certificate from the University confirming their participation in the talent nurturing programme, and will be eligible for additional financial support.

The programme is open to the students of Károli Gáspár University of the Reformed Church in Hungary, regardless of their home faculty, and we are specifically seeking to encourage interdisciplinary cooperation and thinking. The majority of the sessions takes place on weekday afternoons and evenings at the KIDA programme site.

During the training, we try to find as many exciting ways of learning as possible, such as research breakfasts, mini-conferences, club nights and field trips, and we also encourage participants to implement their own initiatives.

The talent management programme is realised within the framework of a public service funding contract between the Reformed Church in Hungary and the Ministry of Innovation and Technology.

KÁROLI JUNIOR ACADEMY

An important objective of our university is to establish contacts with Reformed Church secondary schools, to provide extra education for talented secondary school students, and to create the possibility of continuity between the educational institutions of the Reformed Church in Hungary. Károli Junior Academy pursues its activities in this spirit under the leadership of Andrea Jankó-Badó. The academy, established within the framework of the rector's programme, works in cooperation with the faculties and is assisted by a council of representatives from Reformed Church secondary schools, the Reformed Church in Hungary and the University.

Károli Junior Academy offers a variety of activities for interested secondary school students, such as field trips, career guidance and school competitions, offering participants an insight into the daily life of the University and a comprehensive overview of its activities and courses. Attending these activities can help students choose the course that best matches their interests when applying for a university. The programme, which started in September 2022, provides a unique opportunity for secondary school students in years 11 and 12 to acquire in a single four-session package, among others, a basic understanding of the programmes offered by each faculty.

Those interested can choose from the following courses:

- The Basics of Humanities and Social Sciences
- The Basics of Social and Health Knowledge
- The Basics of Lifestyle and Recreation
- The Basics of Economy
- The Basics of Foreign Languages
- The Basics of Legal Knowledge
- The Basics of Education and Theology
- The Basics of Psychology

In addition to learning the theoretical basics, participants can also meet professional practitioners and learn about job opportunities in these fields during the sessions. Upon successful completion of the chosen course, students will receive a certificate, which can be used as a substitute for completing an optional course if they are accepted to our university.

SCHOLARSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

In addition to scholarships based on students' academic merits (the scholarship of academic excellence, the national higher education scholarship), social scholarships (the regular social scholarship, the basic scholarship, the extraordinary social scholarship, and the Bursa Hungarica Higher Education Scholarship) and international grants facilitating student exchange are available for students participating in Hungarian higher education, as well as the scholarships sponsored by the Reformed Church of Hungary. We aim to facilitate the commitment of our students to our university and their outstanding professional and academic performance through a number of university and faculty scholarships established by the Reformed Church in Hungary.

SCHOLARSHIP PROGRAMMES AVAILABLE AT KÁROLI GÁSPÁR UNIVERSITY OF THE REFORMED CHURCH IN HUNGARY

Károli Scholarship

The aim of the scholarship is to support talented young people who apply for our university as their first choice as self-financed students and get admitted. The scholarship is open to all first-year, self-financed students enrolled full-time in Bachelor's, Master's or one-cycle programme, and who have selected our university as their first choice. The scholarship is allocated on a semester basis, can be awarded for one semester (five months) and can cover up to 75% of the cost of the study programme. It is important for us to provide financial support to ensure that those in need are not excluded from higher education.

Károli Scholarship of Excellence

The scholarships are awarded to full-time, first-year students in Bachelor's or one-cycle study programmes who have selected our university as their first choice and achieved a high ranking in a secondary school competition.

Reformed Church Scholarship

In accordance with the aims of the Reformed Church in Hungary, the University has established the Reformed Church Scholarship to support the tertiary studies of young members of the Reformed Church who are committed to their faith. The Reformed Church Scholarship is open to non-theological students who are active members of their (Reformed Church) congregations, start their first year of studies at the University and are enrolled in a) a full-time Bachelor's course (BA, BSc) or b) a full-time or part-time Master's course or an one-cycle training programme.

Eötvös Károly Scholarship

The Eötvös Károly Scholarship offers scholarship to students with outstanding academic performance studying in the single-cycle long programme at the Faculty of Law, in the Bachelor of International Relations programme at the Faculty of Humanities and Social Sciences or in the bachelor programmes in the field of economics at the Faculty of Economics, Health Sciences and Social Studies, to reduce the costs of their studies.

Scholarships for sporting activities

The call for applications is open to full-time students of Károli Gáspár University with an active student status at the University who, in addition to fulfilling the academic requirements, are actively engaged in competitive sports, or who have achieved nationally or internationally recognised sports results, and have thus made a significant contribution to the success and development of the sports community.

FOREIGN CITIZENS WISHING TO STUDY AT OUR UNIVERSITY ARE WELCOME TO APPLY FOR THE FOLLOWING SCHOLARSHIPS:

Stipendium Hungaricum Scholarship Programme

The aim of the Stipendium Hungaricum Scholarship Programme is to support the internationalisation and improve the quality of Hungarian higher education, promoting it in the world.

Károli Christian Scholarship

In order to support young Christians persecuted or exposed to discrimination in the world, the University provides scholarships for the entire duration of the beneficiary's studies to foreign nationals from countries listed in the scholarship programme.

Scholarship for Christian Young People

The aim of the scholarship programme is to provide an opportunity for young Christian people whose Christian communities in their countries of origin are subject to religious persecution, threats or restrictions on the free practice of religion to pursue higher education at state-accredited institutions of higher education in Hungary. Within the framework of the programme, students are exempted from paying a tuition fee, they receive a scholarship and free dormitory accommodation or housing support. They are also provided with Hungarian health insurance and a contribution to travel expenses once a year for outgoing and return travel.

The Hungarian Diaspora Scholarship

The aim of the Hungarian Diaspora Scholarship is to provide special support to foreign students with Hungarian roots to pursue their studies at Hungarian institutions of higher education. The programme covers the Hungarian diaspora community in all countries of the world, with the exception of the Member States of the European Union, the Republic of Serbia, and the Carpathian region of Ukraine. Students participating in the scholarship programme are obliged to study Hungarian during their studies in Hungary to pass the B2 level language examination by the time of their graduation, and to assist the local Hungarian diaspora through community work for the period of time specified in the call for applications.

The strategic ambition of the Károli Gáspár University is to further develop its international relations, expand the number of partner institutions and deepen existing cooperation. The University has bilateral agreements with more than 250 institutions of higher education from over 50 countries worldwide, allowing students and teachers to visit partner institutions, conduct joint research publish widely, and organise joint training courses. The majority of our partners are European, but we also have agreements with universities in Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Thailand, the United States, Canada, Colombia and Georgia.

In Europe, the Erasmus+ Programme of the European Union plays a prominent role in international cooperation among European universities, and our University also participates in the regional CEEPUS and Makovecz Programmes. The Stipendium Hungaricum Scholarship Programme, the Scholarship Programme for Christian

Young People and the Hungarian Diaspora Scholarship of the Hungarian government enable thousands of students from all over the world to apply for Hungarian institutions of higher education, including Károli Gáspár University. Our University's own Károli Christian Scholarship was established to support young Christians who are persecuted or exposed to discrimination in the world.

As a Christian university, our priority is to build links with other Christian institutions of higher education all over the world. To facilitate this, the University has joined the International Network for Christian Higher Education (INCHE) and is an associate member of the Council of Christian Colleges and Universities (CCCCU). At the same time the University signed the Magna Charta Universitatum in 2015.

WHAT OUR STUDENTS THINK OF KÁROLI

“For me, the first three years I spent at Károli made it absolutely clear that I would like to continue my studies here on the Master’s programme. During this time, I came to understand, and personally experience, what the words in the Károli slogan actually mean: Quality. Community. Károli. In my eyes, quality means being in the company of teachers who have an outstanding level of professional knowledge, but at the same time they transmit – in a humane, willing way – not only their know-how but also their enthusiasm for the profession and their life experience. This has the power to shape attitudes and create values. When it comes to community, I see it as referring to the experience of being surrounded by an open, receptive milieu that has a supportive power, in which everyone has a place and a task, and through which one comes to gain a sense of belonging. I believe that Károli creates a secure environment for everyone, in which they can develop according to their own possibilities and goals, and in which they can freely discover their strengths, and seek out their own particular path. All this adds up to a lasting experience that will be with one for an entire lifetime, and that has an identity- and future-shaping significance.”

REBEKA PAP

Psychology second cycle (MA) student

“When choosing a university, it was very important for me that the training programme was not ‘mass-produced’. Here at Károli, we can say that we are not just Neptun codes for our professors. Here you can ask questions freely and develop a really good teacher-student relationship, which greatly boosts the standard of education. The university also has a very active community life. The Self-government and the university administration organise diverse programmes regularly, so that everyone finds something to enjoy. I think Károli has one of the best student support systems in the country. There are plenty of scholarships available for both publicly funded and self-financed students. I am very happy to study here and be part of this community.”

LÁSZLÓ HORVÁTH

Law student

“I happened to come to the Károli Open Day by chance and from that day on there was no question where I would go to university. So, looking back over the years, I know that I made the right decision, because in addition to an excellent education, I also found a real family at the university. I know my future is in good hands, because I have all the help I need to achieve my goals. The university also offers many extra-curricular activities, both in sports and in community life. I have become part of a community at Károli that I am proud to represent, as we help and support each other.”
