Course Description: The aim of this course is to offer an outline account of the most important aspects of noun-related constructions in English. The analysis draws on the descriptive and theoretical advances made in linguistics. It will give a careful and precise account of the major areas of English including complex morphological and syntactic structures of different Noun Phrases and the different clause and sentence types. All students attending this course must understand that no more than three absences are allowed. The final grade will be based on the result of the midterm and the end-term test (90%), home assignment and participation (10%).
