

Postgraduate Training in Economic psychology: Advanced Training in Business psychology, business ethics, organizational self-awareness

Participants in the training can use the methods of organisational self-awareness and professional personality development as managers in the management of their own businesses, profit and non-profit organisations. As organisational development professionals, they can apply the skills they have acquired in the use of community, ethical-oriented organisational development models and methods, and the interdisciplinary psychological, business ethical and theological foundations of their practical work are strengthened.